Description

Bellevue is a spectacular, newly remodelled plantation estate home. The house sits in secluded woods at the end of a modest, unmarked road, a real surprise for those who chance on it unexpectedly. The imposing gates, the many mature trees and sweeping lawns tell you that something special lies beyond. Features DescriptionThe property was known as Anton Hall in the late 18th century and is believed to have been built between 1735 and 1750. Owners over the centuries reflect the classic Barbadian plantation names – Dowdings, Connells & Collymores. The last owner was Dr. Arno Trieloff who recently sold it to the present owners, who have done a fabulous job of modernizing and providing every luxury, while keeping the traditional Barbadian style. Surrounding DescriptionAn enchanting island, Barbados is culturally rich and blessed with beautiful white sand beaches and a strong infrastructure, which has enticed investors from around the globe to build magnificent homes along the shores of the renowned West Coast. Nearby Attractions DescriptionGuests can expect the drive to most of the West Coast villas to take approximately 30-40 minutes but it is a pleasant drive through sugar cane fields and along the coast.
